

Alliance Military Chaplains on Mission

“Chaplains tell me they sometimes feel separated from The Alliance,” says Robert Collins, retired lieutenant colonel (Army) and director for Alliance Military Chaplains Ministries. Collins is the professional and spiritual mentor for Alliance military chaplains whose deployment takes them around the world, including to the front lines of war. “They have no Alliance churches close to where they are stationed, or they live in an area of the world where there is no Alliance fellowship.”

Collins understands, having felt the isolation while he was in the military, and is working to change the situation. Alliance chaplains who have been stationed in Iraq, Afghanistan, and Kuwait have been telling the stories of God’s amazing work among troops for six years. Conversions and baptisms occurred in places recorded in Genesis; Bible studies have sprung up throughout the many battalions.

In Kuwait, Chaplain Erik Gramling recently baptized a new believer and attended the Lighthouse Church, where Alliance pastor Daniel Harstad is “on loan” from the Canadian C&MA. The church is part of the National Evangelical Church Compound in Kuwait City, where 10–20,000 people from 73 multilingual congregations attend worship services each week.

“The Compound was founded in the early 1900s by an American medical couple who were invited by the ruling family of Kuwait,” says Gramling. “The ministry is robust; many come to Christ.”

Gramling also encouraged his German military congregation to give to the ministry of the Evangelical Alliance Church in Baghdad. In one Sunday offering, church members designated more than $12,000 to the Great Commission Fund for that project.

Collins says, “The vision is larger than Alliance Military Chaplain Ministries. I believe we bring our Alliance chaplain family closer to the true reality—we are Alliance—and we have a vision that is larger than are own ministries. It is a worldwide vision to take the whole gospel to the whole world!”

Giving Triples in Cambodia

Despite the worldwide economic downturn, church giving recently has doubled—and even tripled—in some Khmer Evangelical churches in Cambodia (The Khmer Evangelical Church is the C&MA national church in that country).

“In light of the present financial crisis, the church families here were strongly convicted by the message of giving that has been preached in the churches,” says Alliance missionary Soeuth Lao, who serves in the border city of Poipet. “Although the actual number appears small (according to the local standard of living), the amount of giving received has been tripled in Santepheap Church and doubled in the Poipet Church.”

The increase in giving is especially significant considering the extreme poverty in Cambodia. “Cambodia is set to be the country hardest hit this year by the global economic crisis in the Asia Pacific region,” the World Bank stated on April 7, 2009.

“We are encouraged by the tremendous response of God’s people and continue to trust Him to meet our needs,” says Soeuth.

Revival at Dorcas House

Alliance church member Susan Canida, on a short-term missions trip to Burkina Faso, had watched every Monday morning for several weeks as Alliance missionary Lorinda Robinson shared the story of God’s redemption with the 15 young women, ages 15 to 25, living at Dorcas House, a home that offers practical and spiritual mentoring to women who otherwise would be on the streets.

Carried by the prayers of many, Lorinda’s words fell on ripe ears and ripe hearts—the spiritual veil was removed! With tears of joy, seven young women decided to give their lives to Christ. For many, it was the first time that they had understood the possibility of a personal relationship with Jesus.

We then gave each attendee her own Bible. Dancing around the room, lifting up their new Bibles, the girls expressed their deep joy in being able to read God’s Word for themselves. One recipient summarized her excitement: “I do not need to eat anything today—I have this Bible—it is enough to satisfy me.”
